Here's Why The Barrymore Is Going To Be Your Next Go-To Industry Night on The Strip

May 22, 2016

If you work on the strip, chances are your usual after-work cocktail spots are crowded, expensive, and full of the people you've been surrounded by all day long. (You know, tourists.) However, this subtle gem is everything but the packed stereotype you'd think of when you think of a Restaurant/bar/lounge on (or near) LVB.

The Barrymore is almost hidden inside of an inconspicuous timeshare/hotel, that almost gives off the vibe of a rent-by-the-hour hotel. Don't let that scare you off. Take a step inside and the ambiance changes dramatically, with boutique touches everywhere and a classy vibe.

The restaurant itself offers a patio that overlooks some of the less common strip views, and a fire pit wall that will have you running to Home Depot enviously pricing one out for your backyard. This is perfect for enjoying our famously warm summer evenings whilst you sip on one of their specialty cocktails. (by specialty, I mean an extensive list of cocktails created by their epic mixologist bartenders. You will not be disappointed.)

Inside the decor gives off an old Hollywood vibe, complete with a ceiling covered in movie reels. It's not difficult to feel glamorous here, especially after taking a gander at their food menu.

Right off the bat I will tell you they do not sell their Lobster Mac & Cheese by the bucket, because I asked. They should really call it the Mac & Cheese lobster, because the huge pieces of lobster are complimented by the cheesy goodness and not the other way around. Their Seafood is absolutely everything it should be, and the coconut shrimp has just the right amount of sweet-ish breading. Foie Gras is notably not for everyone, but their Foie Gras Parfait is. Try it.
